Filing Requirements:

- Organizations with $25,000 or less in gross receipts:
 - Are generally exempt from filing IRS Form 990.
 - Beginning in 2008 all organizations exempt from IRS Form 990 must file e-Postcard IRS Form 990-N.
 - IRS recently mailed educational letters notifying small tax-exempt organizations of this requirement.
 - IRS will revoke tax-exempt status for those organizations that fail to file an IRS Form 990, Form 990EZ or Form 990-N for three consecutive years.
- Organizations normally having more than $25,000 in gross receipts are required to file IRS Form 990.
- Churches or other religious organizations are normally exempt from filing IRS Form 990 (but not Form 990T).
- An IRS 990EZ can be file instead of a full form 990 for organizations with the following:
 - For 2008 gross receipts less than $1,000,000 or assets at year end less than $2,500,000
 - For 2009 gross receipts less than $ 500,000 or assets at year end less than $1,250,000
 - For 2008 gross receipts less than $ 200,000 or assets at year end less than $ 500,000

Why you should file an IRS Form 990 even if exempt:

- A nonprofit could move from the 990-N category to the 990 category and not realize it. This often happens when revenues increase but the nonprofit official responsible for IRS tax filings files on the incorrect form.
- Filing of the IRS Form 990 helps the nonprofit develop adequate accounting procedures before growth complicates recordkeeping.
- A copy of IRS Form 990 is often requested by grantors.

Back to the top

Should a nonprofit organization file the IRS Form 990 themselves?

- It is important to remember IRS tax laws are complex and nonprofits should consult with a professional tax advisor when filing IRS Form 990.

Back to the top

IRS Form 990 Filing Due Dates:

- IRS Form 990 is due the 15th day of the 5th month after organization's fiscal year end. For example if your year ends on December 31, 2007 then the IRS Form 990 is due May 15, 2008.
- IRS Form 8868, Application for Extension of Time to File, gives you a 90 day automatic extension of the filing due date. However, this form must be filed by the original due date.
- Late filing fees are $20 a day up to $10,000 or 5% of gross receipts, whichever is lower. For organizations with $2 million or more in gross receipts the late filing fees are $100 a day up to $50,000.
- For incomplete returns there is a fee of $10 a day up to $5,000. It is important to know that even having the organization's name incorrect on the form will make the form incomplete.

E-filing Requirements of the IRS Form 990:

- Nonprofits with $10 million or more in assets and who file at least 250 IRS returns in one year must e-file for tax years ending on or after Dec. 31, 2006.
- Also, if an organization has assets less than $10 million an e-files they are required by IRS to use an authorized IRS e-file provider.

Common mistakes made by nonprofits on the IRS Form 990:

Each year IRS estimates 36% of the 990's and 52% of the 990-EZ's have errors. The following are some of the most common errors:

- Name of organization does not match name on application for exemption (Form 1023).
- Failing to consider unrelated business income tax issues.
- Improperly classifying employees as independent contractors.
- Improper functional allocation between programs, management and general, fundraising and membership development.
- Failure to report changes in operations or activities to IRS.
- Not dealing properly with related entities.
- Filing an incomplete or inaccurate tax return.
- Failing to maintain adequate books and records.
- Failing to properly handle vehicle donation programs. IRS Publication 4303 is a great guide to how to handle vehicle donations.
- Failing to comply with lobbying rules and limitations.
- Failing to comply with public inspection and fundraising disclosure requirements.

When a nonprofit should file an IRS Form 990T:

- Generally when the nonprofit has an activity related to trade or business and the trade or business is regularly carried on and is not substantially related to the organization's exempt purpose.
- Exclusions include:
 - a. Activities performed which are substantially carried on by volunteers. This means approximately 85% of those carrying on the activity are volunteers.
 - b. Activities related to selling donated merchandise.
 - c. Bingo activities.
 - d. Passive income, which includes, but is not limited to, interest/dividends, royalties, rental income from real property not financed by debt, gain on sale of property, income from research and most corporate sponsorships.
- Corporate sponsorships are not excluded if the nonprofit promotes the sponsor's products, services or facilities in exchange for the sponsorship. Unless the nonprofit only gives a simple acknowledgement of the sponsor's gift, the nonprofit should seek the advice of their professional tax advisor to determine if the corporate sponsorship is or is not exempt from inclusion on IRS Form 990T.

Information needed by the nonprofit for the preparation of the IRS Form 990:

- Expenses need to be separated by functional categories: programs, management and general and fund-raising.
 - Fundraising expenses are those incurred in:
 - Maintaining donor mailing lists.
 - Preparing and distributing fund-raising manuals and materials (including grant writing).
 - Soliciting contributions or membership dues.
 - Publicizing and conducting fund-raising campaigns and special events.
 - IRS is now sending information letters to those who did not report fund raising expenses or reported fundraising expenses less than 5% of contributions. To avoid this attention from IRS a nonprofit should attach a statement explaining why no or little fund raising expenses were reported on their IRS Form 990.
- Program expenses summed by program achievement categories.
- Compensation and benefits paid in the current year to officers, executive director, and key employees.
- Compensation and benefits paid in the current year to former officers, directors, trustees and key employees.
- Investment earnings need to be separated into realized and unrealized gains or losses.
- On the IRS Form 990 the nonprofit is asked if they have a conflict of interest policy. It is a good idea to implement this policy before the filing of your next IRS Form 990.
- List of contributors that gave greater than $5,000 in contribution.
- Contributions separated by direct and indirect contributions. Contributions are those gifts in which the donor receives nothing in return for their contributions. Direct contributions are those contributions received directly from the contributor. Indirect are those contributions that are received from organizations like the United Way.
- List of in-kind contributions: Gifts, securities and tangible gifts should be listed separately from donated services and donated use of facilities, materials and equipment.
- List of special events.
 - Special event receipts must be divided into two categories: that contributed and that portion of which something of value was received.
 - Direct costs of special event (food, venue, items sold, etc.) should be separated from fundraising expenses.
- Dues need to be separated into those that the member receives more than a nominal value for the dues and those that do not.
- Since the cash method is used for one schedule on the IRS Form 990, you need to be able to provide to your tax preparer the receivables and other accruals that are related to support revenues.

Some additional questions that will be asked on the revised 2008 IRS Form 990:

- Does the organization have documentation of governing body meetings?
- Did the governing body review the form 990 before it was filed?
- Does the organization have a written conflict of interest policy?
- Does the organization have a written whistleblower policy?
- Does the organization have a written document retention policy?
- Does the organization have a process for determining compensation?

Who should sign the IRS Form 990?

- An officer of the organization must sign the IRS Form 990.
- It is also very important to have you board of directors or appropriate committee review the IRS Form 990 prior to submitting it.

Back to the top

Disclosure requirement for the nonprofit's IRS Form 990:

- The nonprofit's IRS Form 990 is considered public record and must be made available to the public upon request.
- The three most recent 990s must be given when requested with only a minimal charge equal to the cost of copying the forms.
- Schedule B of the IRS Form 990 is not considered public record and should not be included.
- The nonprofit can post their IRS Form 990s on their web site and when copies are requested the nonprofit need only to tell those requesting how to locate the forms on the web page.
- The IRS form 990T is also subject to public record disclosure.

Back to the top

Changing the nonprofit's name with IRS:

- If incorporated, the nonprofit must amend articles of incorporations and submit to the state for approval.
- The nonprofit must send a letter to IRS notifying IRS of the name change. The letter must include the nonprofit's Federal ID number and exemption code section (i.e. 501(c)(3)). If the nonprofit is incorporated they must also include the confirmation of name change and approval of amended articles of incorporation received from the state.

Back to the top

Changing the nonprofit's tax-exempt purpose with IRS:

- Nonprofits must review their exempt purpose stated in their application for exemption (Form 1023) at least annually to make sure the organization is still aligned with their exempt purpose.
- Significant changes in purpose stated in Form 1023 must be reported to IRS by letter. Significant changes include:
 - New activity and/or new direction for organization.
 - Changes in the character of organization.
 - The formation of a for-profit subsidiary.
 - Change in the way organization's board is elected or appointed.
- Relatively insignificant changes can be communicated by attaching a statement to the next IRS Form 990.

Back to the top

Activities that could threaten a nonprofit's exempt status:

- Transactions that privately benefit insiders of the organization. Insiders include, but are not limited to, members, employees, board members and/or individuals who have any control of the organization. Transactions include:
 - Payout of surpluses.
 - Paying unreasonable compensation.
 - Use of organization's property, including but not limited to, cars, computers and/or cell phones.
- Lobbying as a substantial part of the organization's activities.
- Participating in political campaign in any manner.

State of New Mexico's requirements for nonprofits:

- All charitable organizations must register with the New Mexico Attorney General's office.
- Each year a copy of the organization's IRS Form 990, Schedule A and all attached schedules must be filed with the New Mexico Attorney General's office within six months following the close of the organization's fiscal year. The State will grant the same extension given by the IRS Form 8868, however when sending your IRS Form 990 you must also include the IRS Form 8868.
- If an organization does not file an IRS Form 990, they must file an annual report with the New Mexico Attorney General's office.
- It is unlawful for charitable organizations to solicit funds in New Mexico if they are not current with their filing requirements with the New Mexico Attorney General's office.

Back to the top

Some other filing requirements:

- The Employee Retirement Income Security Act (ERISA) normally requires retirement plan sponsors to file an annual IRS Form 5500. If your retirement plan is a 403(b), you may be exempt from this filing. It is important to seek a professional tax advisor if you have any retirement plan or benefit plans.
- Payroll related requirements are varied and complex. If your nonprofit has any employees, you should seek professional advice on these requirements. You can also order PPC's Payroll Tax Deskbook which gives you detail information on these requirements. PPC's website is www.ppcnet.com.
